L'Atelier Plume.

JEWELRY.

Each piece signed L'Atelier Plume is designed in Nantes and made by several hands in Jaipur. Over there, everything calls for creation: the people, the landscapes, the flow, the colors...

It is from this mix of cultures that L'Atelier Plume draws all its substance from this mix of cultures. From her love of stones to the special relationship she has developed with talented Indians, Claire continues her story today, creating new grigris each season that we want to collect ad infinitum.

The collections are made up of jewelry in brass, 925 silver and 9K gold... and always adorned with fine and/or precious stones. Her collections consist mainly of bracelets, the star piece of her jewelry box, but also necklaces, rings, BO and other desirable marvels...

READY-TO-WEAR.

Textile craftsmanship in India is an integral part of the country's traditional culture. There are still many artisans today, often grouped into cooperatives, who maintain the traditional techniques of fabric manufacture and decoration.

After falling in love with all the magnificent sarees, kanthas, Khadi cotton and other Indian textile arts, it was only natural that Claire should try her hand at ready-to-wear.

Today, Atelier Plume boasts masterpieces in its dressing room, such as the Kali jacket, the Mija dress and the Geeta shirt...

Claire.

A lover of pretty things, Claire grew up in a family steeped in culture. The daughter of a sound engineer and a porcelain painter, art in all its forms has shaped her outlook over the years. After starting out in graphic design, Claire became a cultural communications manager and spent more than 10 years touring theaters...

Then, with the birth of her daughter Marnie, Claire decided to follow a new desire and began making jewelry. This new artistic impulse was quickly spotted, and she became a columnist, proposing a weekly selection of trendy and slightly rock DIYs.

Enriched by this experience, she decided to source new wonders, including the fine stones she has always loved. Her research led her to meet her historic workshop in India. Atelier Plume was born in 2015.

Since then, this purveyor of grigris has seduced a number of pretty names over the seasons, with whom she has created capsules... she has worked with Des Petits Hauts, Mathilde Cabanas, Alysson Paradis, Jamini and Bonton.
